Pipe Creek, Texas Author Publishes First Novel, Wins Award

September 29, 2010 – Born in South Africa and raised in Rhodesia (now Zimbabwe), Valerie Massey Goree immigrated to the United States in her young adulthood. After serving with her husband as missionaries in Zimbabwe for six years, they moved to the San Antonio area, where she retired from the Texas Public School System after 25 years as a special needs teacher. Now, she has authored and published her first novel, and another as-yet unpublished novel won the 2010 American Christian Fiction Writers (ACFW) Genesis Contest in the Romantic Suspense category.

Set in the Hill Country and South West Texas, her first published novel, Deceive Me Once is a suspenseful, page-turner that grips and holds your interest from the very first page. The heroine of the story is Maricella McDonough. After more than 25 years of hiding the truth, Chella's past has finally caught up with her. The body of a young woman is found on the edge of Chella's property. As she investigates the mysterious death, she discovers the woman is connected with her hidden past. Will Chella's dark secret finally be her undoing and ruin the life she has built with her husband and sons? Will they ever forgive her for lying to them all these years? Grab this stirring story of intrigue, deception, danger, suspense, and redemption now to find out!
